Ma.

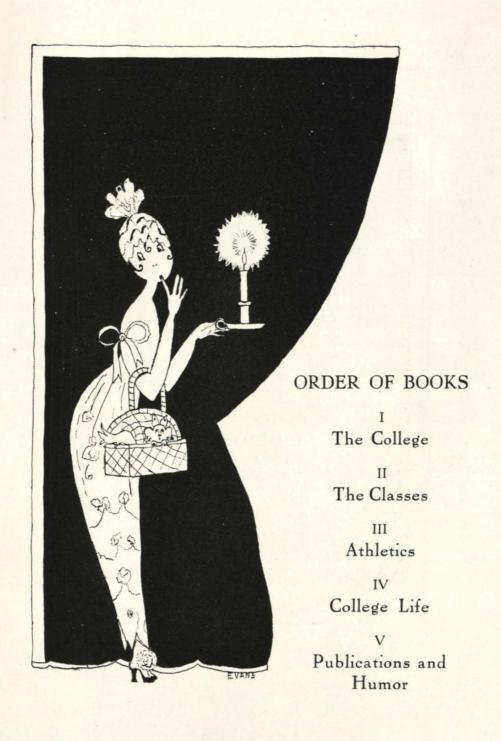

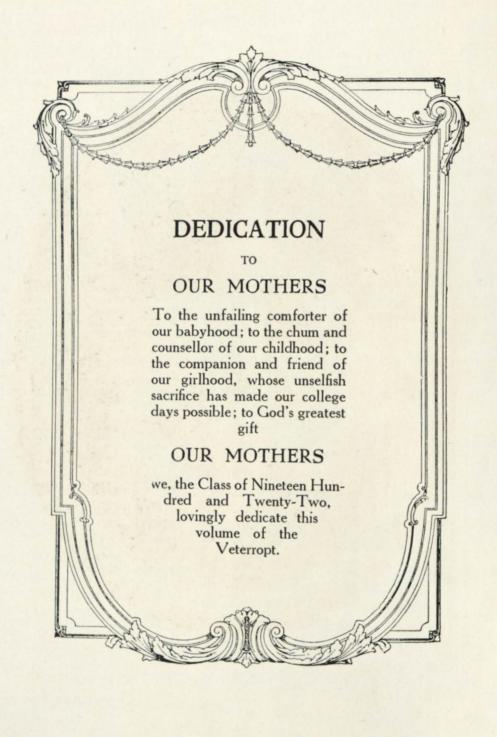

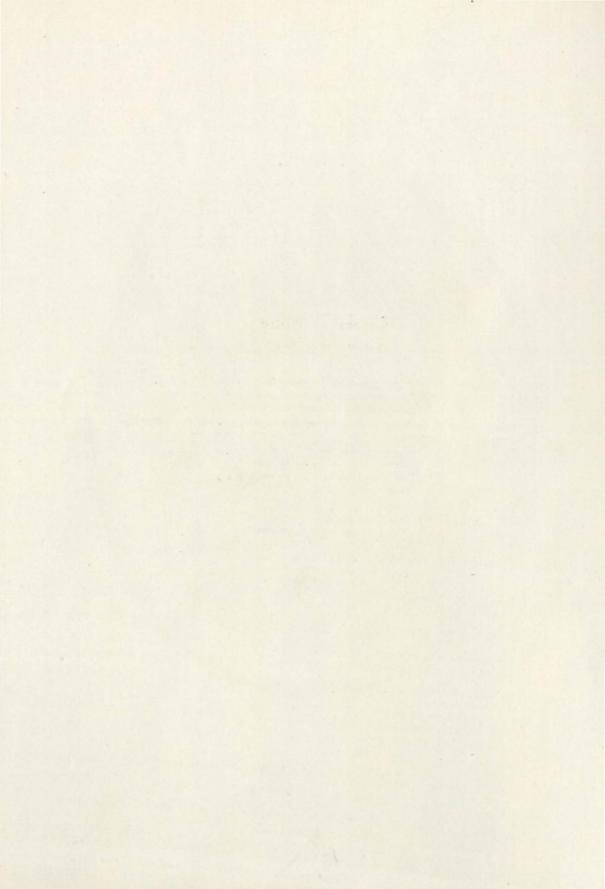

Although the imperfections of this volume of the Veterropt are many, yet in after years when college days are o'er, while turning these pages may you be carried back in dreams to these days so dear to us, may you live again with the friends you love, thus fulfilling the purpose for which we have striven.

Mother o' Mine

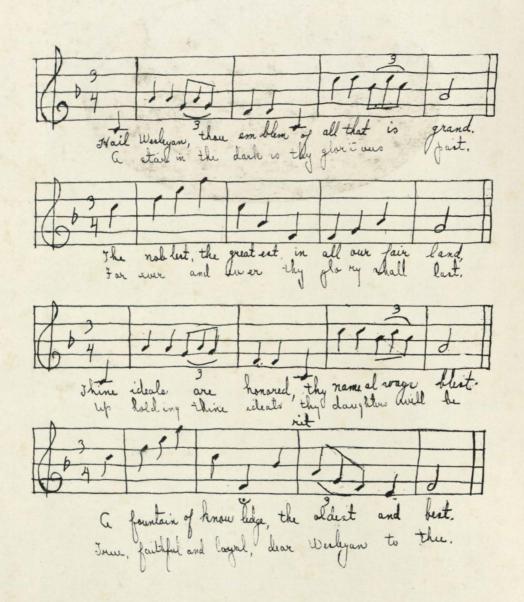

BY RUDYARD KIPLING

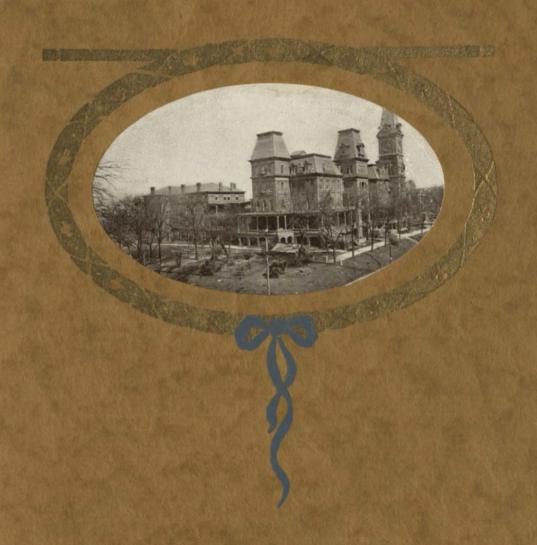

- If I were hanged on the highest hill, Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine! I know whose love would follow me still, Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
- If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
 I know whose tears would come down to me,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
- If I were damned of body and soul,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
 I know whose prayers would make me whole,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

Senior Poem

In our fancy now we wander
To the days we've spent together,
Days with golden memories painted,
Days that ne'er were marred or tainted,
Days sublimely colored. Whether
Young or old, our thoughts grow fonder.

Will the spirit that has bound us
To the emblem that we honor
Ever wane or ever perish,
Ever leave ideals we cherish,
Ever lose the place it won or
Cease to shed its light around us?

No, the flame which first was started In each heart will e'er grow lighter, In the past it safely led us, In the future it will keep us, Binding us with ties grown brighter, Guiding all when we have parted.

Last Will and Testament of 1922

STATE OF GEORGIA SS. COUNTY OF BIBB

E, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Two, being in full possession of sound mind, do make and publish this, our last will and testament, hereby revoking and declaring void any and all wills heretofore made by us:

ITEM I. To the juniors we leave our caps and gowns. The two above mentioned articles may be purchased from members of the Senior Class for $19.98 after June 1, 1922.

ITEM II. To the same class we give and bequeath our senior privileges. May they be more successful in having dates every night than we.

ITEM III. We give and bequeath a collection of $500 for the purpose of having a telephone placed in every room, including the library, pressing room and tea room.

ITEM IV. We leave to our sister class the Round Table. May they continue to have "late dates" with the Crow's Nest.

ITEM V. To the whole student body we leave the few remaining cum laudes and magna cum laudes.

ITEM VI. To the Junior Class we leave the "Georgia Glee Club." May they be more successful in getting the men's clothes to fit.

ITEM VII. We give and bequeath to our sister class the basketball championship. May they keep up our good "rep."

ITEM VIII. To J. W. W. Daniels the seniors leave a Bachelor's Degree.

ITEM IX. We leave our colors, lavender and white, to the incoming Freshman Class.

ITEM X. Lois Passmore and Grace Allen bequeath their privileges of going to the "Pharm" in the morning to Janet McRitchie and Libby Boykin.

ITEM XI. Frances Felton gives and bequeaths her style to Vo Hammie Pharr.

ITEM XII. "Willie" Benton gives and bequeathes the green "sofa" in the senior parlor to Josie Buxton.

ITEM XIII. Helen Owen gives and bequeaths her dignity to Libby Boykin. May she profit by the use of it.

ITEM XIV. Marguerite O'Sheal gives and bequeaths her cosmetics to Frances Peabody.

ITEM XV. The Senior Class gives and bequeaths their mail boxes to Mary Reed.

ITEM XVI. Janie Lee Gardner gives and bequeaths her "sentimentality" to Bertha Hogg.

ITEM XVII. To the incoming Freshman Class we give and bequeath our bobbed hair and youth.

ITEM XVIII. Sarah Vaughan gives and bequeaths her heavy course (4 hours per week) to Fannie Belle Outler.

ITEM XIX. Miriam Sams leaves her athletic ability to Aileen Lokey.

ITEM XX. Bruce Cleckler gives and bequeaths her "originality" to Eloise Bacon.

ITEM XXI. To our beloved sister class, the sophomores, we will our extreme good looks, our popularity with the teachers, the love and reverence of the student body, our majestic appearance, and, above all, our maidenly modesty.

Signed, declared and published by the Class of 1922 as its last will and testament, this 29th day of May, 1922.

Senior Class History

Ah, distinctly we remember Nineteen eighteen, bright September, When one hundred and twenty, perhaps two more, Sought entrance at that stately door.

O doubt you've all heard of Lit. scrolls, have you not? Well, you know everything that finds a place on one of these scrolls is important, but there are some things that completely "turn the world upside down." Everything that ever happened to the Class of '22 was something great. Of course we'd hate to have the whole world upside down, so for this reason we scroll off the epitaph of the lavender and white in the shape of a calendar—not exactly a shepherd's calendar, though indeed we have felt sheepish at times.

1918

September 18—One hundred and twenty names entered on the "stationer's register."

September 19—Antagonists—red and white, destroyed by flames.

October—All of it—We almost "flu" away.

November 28—Overthrow of the red and white in basketball by the Class of '22.

1919

September 17—"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew,

That one small head could carry all we knew."-Sophs.

September 23—Institution of Sophomore Week. Freshman found rebellious.

November 26—High moral seriousness of victory in basketball again revealed.

1920

April 17—Sophomore-Senior Banquet. Great confusion of knives and forks. Trust of Round Table bestowed upon the knights of lavender and white.

May 15—Sophs carry off several prizes in swimming contests.

May 24—Tennis championship won by member of Class of '22.

September 26—Responsibility of one hundred and sixty little sisters thrust upon our growing junior shoulders.

November 25—Two successive victories over seniors and two over sophs decide championship.

1921

April 31-Junior Prom. Wanted; "The Silent Woman."

May 25—First tinge of seniority felt when we take reserved seats in chapel—fifty-one strong.

May 26-Banquet. Lavender and white take senior tables.

"Life is real, life is earnest,"

Just to be a senior is surely its goal.

May 27—Second time tennis championship is carried off by that same girl. We would not designate nor would we point directly at her, but she must be the "out-tennisingest" girl Wesleyan ever had.

September 18—Fifty-one seniors in deep mourning lead procession to Mulberry.

October 1—Headlines in paper—Seniors gone wild—all desired privileges granted—and then some (those taken back.)

October 20—Something that never happened before in the history of the college. Seniors rush juniors—all on account of literary societies.

November 24—Senior line-up still unbroken. An all-star cast. Besides the basketball victory, this Thanksgiving means more to us than one ever did before. However, it is a sad one, for we realize that we are nearing the end of our college days.

November 30—Another basketball game results—a freshman Missouri compromise—seniors on top.

December 3—Lavender and white again victorious. Four successive years of undefeated greatness. Wesleyan's champions forever and ever.

1922

April 30—Sophomore-Senior banquet. Hospitality of our little sisters unexcelled. As a parting remembrance we will them our golden Round Table.

May 22—Beginning of "Senior Week." Quite a novelty to be "free, white and twenty-one."

May 23—Crow's Nest is willed to the juniors. Senior-Sophomore debate, "Resolved, That my tears on this day were more bitter than yours."

May 29—A red-letter day and we hope a blue-ribbon one also.

"And there's so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it hardly behooves any of us
To talk about the rest of us."

And thus the sun of college life sets after a glorious career. We feel sad, things seem dismal, but the darkest hour comes just before the dawn, through the clouds the sun is still shining, and no matter what troubles and trials beset us, we'll never forget you, O Wesleyan, the oldest and best, and for each of you, O fellow-students, we leave the fond hope that the realities of life may be real pleasure, success, joy and happiness.

MARION TIGNER, Historian.

Senior Class Prophecy

HEN I first realized that it was my duty, not to mention honor, to delve into the future of the Class of '22, it was my foremost thought to gracefully refuse and ask them, as did Spenser, "Who can turn the stream of destiny?"

But while I was still debating in my mind the question, "To be or not to be"—a prophet, I was also besieged by the most fanciful of dreams. You've doubtless heard, from your childhood, of rose-tinted dreams. I never dreamed of any other kind. This newest one was different. It drifted from the blush of the rose into that shade of orchid more commonly called lavender. Combined with this was the white that symbolizes the lives of purest chastity that the members of the round table had sworn to live.

I first considered myself entangled in the concerns of Fairyland; then from the most thrilling accounts of some of my classmates. I decided it must be "wonder stories" that were being flashed in the orchid mist; but nothing could be as confused as the jumble of futurities that confronted me.

Finally the screen cleared; a table, round and golden, appeared in the middle of the hall to be famed and the dreamer that was I could tell that the play was ready to start.

Key-note: By their shadows ye shall know them.

First, enter, our goddess of the golden tresses! Frances it is—and one can tell that her life after college has been one grand continuation of happiness. Clad in the western horsewoman habit, she comes from her own ranch near El Paso. Always the picture of fashion, she saunters in with her gloves and whip in hand, as she would enter her ranch-house amid the cheers of her faithful cowboys. She finds her place at the table of reunion and awaits her classmates. Immediately after her, dances in the wee Pierrette with flaxen hair and blue eyes. As a sign of recognition she screws her face up like a bad little bad boy, as if to announce that she was still brightening the world with her dramatic art. She is the entertainer in the largest children's hospital in Washington. That's Isma.

They begin to crowd the portals.

The next to be introduced is one who worked for us faithfully. Her sense of duty may still be noticed in that jovial smile. Of course she's managing something. Miss Doris Brownell, manager of the Y. W. C. A. tea room at Jacksonville, Fla.

Music hath charms, so hath our pianist of old. Lena Belle may be heard playing that soft melody just as she did for us to enter the banquet hall Thanksgiving, 1921. Her position has changed somewhat. After studying in Germany, she is now accompanying Elizabeth Jenkins Roscoe, who is our prima donna.

Here comes a familiar looking member, black hair, wee but capable. Miss Irene Sewell, that's wrong. She has married the minister to Belgium from the United States and is the able assistant to Princess Marie in her work to introduce American educational ideals into Belgian schools.

Well do I remember the hours I spent with Sarah Beauchamp listening to the fundamentals of the teaching processes. Then I had her planned for a superb English or history teacher in her home town. How absurd! She's a Knickerbocker girl in the police corps of New York City. With her are Misses Mamie Henslee and Janie Lee Gardner.

"Some people are born talented, etc." Miss Mary Wilson owns and operates the largest art studio in Hollywood, Calif. Our own beautiful Clementine is her leading model.

Next comes one of our pets. Would you guess if I told you that she was unflinchingly good-natured? She still is, and for that reason her law office in Albany is always full. Lois Passmore, LL.D., never loses a case, not even the most important ones, where hearts are concerned.

You also guessed that Lois and Marguerite would drift into this round table meeting together. Their offices are in the same building. Marguerite is chairman of the Board of Education.

Grace Allen, having been addicted to good times and jazz in her youth, now appears before the assembled in the raiment prescribed for the rest cure. She is taking an extended vacation. With her is Miss Katharine Buchanan.

Enter together Miss Cooper and Miss Rich, the writer's habit developing from that English department at Wesleyan. The world is grateful to Miss Rich for a book of poems and short stories. Miss Cooper is the monthly contributor to the American Magazine. She succeeded Dr. Frank Crane as editor.

Somewhere in Illinois you may see advertised the King Collie Kennels. Martha is bringing her thoroughbred with her as a proof of her love of perfection. Also with her are her able assistants, Miss Louise Walters and Miss Anna Winn. They are living dogs' lives, but they look content.

Descending from the encircling balcony are some young matrons who have nothing to do but keep up with the voting, political parties and prevailing modes. They are Mrs. Julia Lennard Anderson, Mrs. Helen Moore Jones, Mrs. Mildred Harris Killand.

Next enters Lucile Burnett. Her china painting studio is the largest in the South. Her co-laborer is Miss Lydia Tanner. They have joint studios.

Straight from Paris comes little Brucie Cleckler. We can't call her that now. She's too famous. But still our designer: "Klekla makes our costumes luxurious affairs"—so reads the Criterion. That's not enough for her to be doing, though. While in America she assists Gladys Dismuke and Louise Pickett in their child welfare work.

Following them comes Miriam with a book, O so thick. She is still penetrating the question of economics and labor problems. Courses and even names designated by the letter "M" always had a particular fascination for her.

A rush of doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs! Edith Bayne has won her M.D. degree from Johns Hopkins, and on account of her brilliant record there, has been an assistant to one of the professors. Lawyer Bozeman is coming to us in a flutter from her latest-won murder case. Annie Lee Cross and Martha Weir have a wholesale establishment. They are selling millinery and fashionable Paris models to a wide patronage. Designing for the firm is Mary Edwards, who studied in New York under Hartman.

Dreaming of chiefs, I see them come. Some are leaders, some are principals, while others are just plain prominent. High schools have principals. By this fact we recognize Ruth Taylor, who is the "chief of the high school where she learned her own algebra and Latin." Chiefs also remind us of the old Indian reservation. Miss Sara Harrell, now retired, won recognition as a teacher in the Oklahoma reservation. With her is Miss Sara Wood, who did missionary work there. Next in the line of guidance comes Marguerite Roberts. She is on Ellis Island, teaching immigrants the essentials of American ideals. Helping her to democratize them is Ruth Holt, the competent. Another celebrity whom it gives me pleasure to call into the beloved circle is a ruler's wife. Esther left us to go back to her own country. While winning her followers' hearts, somebody ran away with hers. Guess who?

We always wondered what two of our talented and efficient sisters would achieve. Both endowed with dramatic ability, have established a school for girls On-the-Hudson. The name of the school is "Owen-Tigner Academy of Dramatic Art." Helen is the president, while Marian is the director. Josephine Evans advertises the academy throughout the South with programs of negro dialect. They enter as the triple alliance.

Coming next is Jeffie Bennett. Her romance is ended. No longer can we call her "Miss Billy." She has come back to her first love, and is head librarian at Wesleyan. Another returning to her Alma Mater to enrich it is Elizabeth Paine. She has succeeded Miss Wallace in the department of expression.

The round table is almost unbroken. A few remain to enter. Elizabeth Benton, now living in Washington, is the wife of a Georgia congressman. Her social functions are unlimited, but as she enters our banquet hall, I can see that she is back in the glorious days of victory for Lavender and White.

Julia Morgan comes to us from the general Sunday school of the M. E. Church, South.

We might know that the movies would get some of our number. In dreamland, who should enter from her Bermuda Island studio but little Helen Brannon. She is taking the child's role in a late drama.

From Georgia's supreme court comes one of our ablest. The first woman to hold such a position in the state is Miss Sara Roberts of Macon.

Miss Rubye Preston, enter! She is lady principal of the Methodist orphanage in Nashville, where she has all the helpless ones that she wants to take care of.

Lastly, here comes the prophet herself, from her little country school, where she is principal and teacher and janitor. Will the education movement ever reach the cross-roads schoolhouse?

"The circle unbroken is friendship itself, Lasting where'er we be. From ocean to ocean, forever we're true, O Lavender and White, to thee!"

The Golden Heart

O, the Golden Heart is a singing heart And the road it follows is royal; For the golden haze of singing days Hangs over its friendships loyal.

O, the Golden Heart is a trusting heart, And the gleam it follows is steady; In a puzzling maze of doubtful days Shine brightest its clear rays ready.

But the Golden Heart is a loving heart, And the life it follows is freest; For the Christ Himself is pattern-man, And the life of love—He sees't!

Junior Class History

BY REBEKAH GRAY OLIPHANT

NE golden day in September, 1919, when ye wind rustled ye red and yellow leaves down from ye trees and sent ye hats sailing away down ye Cherry Street, there came to ye castle Wesleyan a very green, very scared young squire, who wished more than anything in the world to become a knight and prove himself the possessor of a true golden heart.

In ye castle were other knights and ye little squire had no hope of gaining for himself honor and renown; yet his heart was brave and stout, and he entered him right bravely in ye lists of ye tournament to be held on Thanksgiving Day. His horse was white and his armor gold, and proudly he rode when he saw that ye device on his banner was a heart of gold.

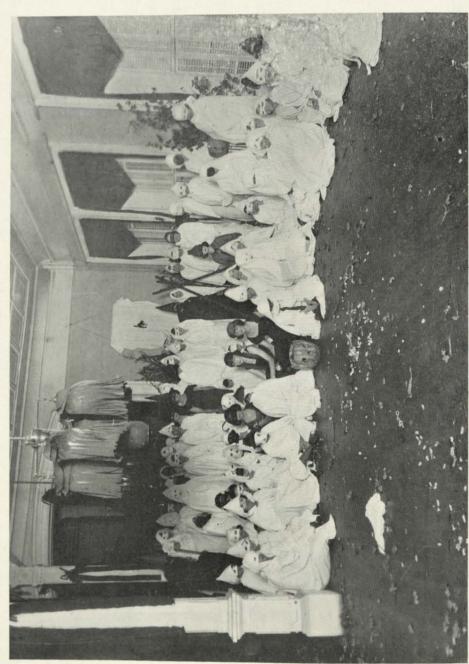

But alack for ye poor young squire! Ye day went against him and night time found him sorely wounded and heart sick, but despite his wounds and weariness, he kept a brave front and smiled so cheerily that ye king noticed him and knighted him for his courage in ye face of defeat.

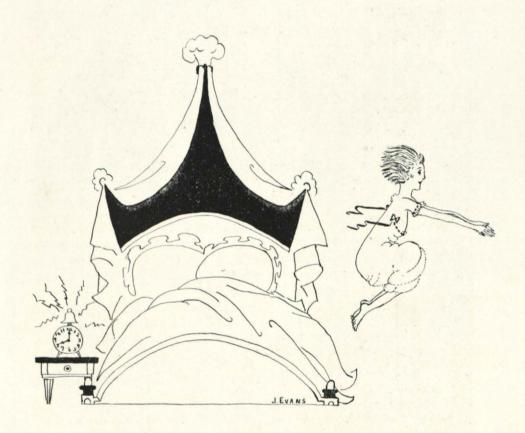

But, know ye, gentle reader, that this knight had fallen in love the very first day with the fairest lady in ye whole castle! He called her his lady of the red and white because her lips were redder than ye maple that flames in September and her teeth whiter than ye clouds that fleck a June-day sky. Nearest his heart he carried always her glove, on which was broidered her device, a skull with two crossed bones beneath, and in battle when he thought of it, it made him fight the harder.

For three long years ye knight went his way in ye castle. In some tournaments he came out ye victor and in some he was vanquished, but through it all he was true to his lady fair of ye red and white and his dream of ye golden heart.

And now ye time draws near when ye knight must go forth into ye world. Many a tournament awaits him out there; in some he will win and in some he will lose, but of one thing he is sure, ye banner for which he has fought so bravely since first he looked on ye golden heart broidered there shall never, never drag in ye dust and ye bright ideal to which he has striven so hard to be faithful shall never be dimmed.

Sophomore Class History

MARGARET RICHARDS

In September, nineteen-twenty,
One hundred and sixty-nine
Freshmen came to Wesleyan.
They were young and verdant,
But quite inadvertant(ly)
They found that they were not alone
In the wide, cold world;
For their sisters, the Juniors,
Drew them into the whirl
Of gay, rushing college life.
About that time, though,
Every old Sophomore
Made them wear pigtails and rouged their noses.

Then Thanksgiving they beat them
On basketball.
Bill Shakespeare said,
"Knowledge is the wing
When we fly to heaven."
Eighty-five of them believed that too,
So they came back,
And were filled with Sophomore wisdom.
(Ask Mr. W. K. Greene.)

Then Thanksgiving came again, But they got beat again. But they had a fine team, Full of pep and steam.

In the spring they were sad,
For they realized they had
To give up their sweet Senior sisters.
But they smiled bravely
And gave them a banquet
At the Dempsey.
And everybody had a good time
And laughed and cried and smiled and sighed.

Then it was June— Their sisters were graduated, And they were Juniors, I thank you.

Sophomore Class Poem

To the Gold and Green

'Tis early in the morning,
And on the hillsides green,
The sunshine falling on the dew
Gives out a golden gleam.

A band of gallant pilgrims
Is pushing up the hill.
They feel the grace of early morn,
They hear the robins trill.

But though the world about them
Be bonny, blithe and gay,
They look with steadfast eyes ahead,
Nor pause along the way.

For they see there before them That clear, inspiring gleam, And all the Sophomores' hearts rejoice, 'Tis the banner, gold and green.

Classmates of twenty-four,
Strive on, while banners wave.
Follow the gleam of the gold and green
'Til glory shall crown the brave.

Freshman Class History

LASS HISTORY," some one exclaimed when I mentioned that subject (I have forgotten just who it was, but I am ready to wager it was a sophomore). "Why, the Freshman Class has no history."

And, lest some of you shall be of that same mistaken opinion, I wish to prove to you that the Freshman Class has, indeed, a history which, though brief, has certainly been gloriously eventful.

The first few days I shall mention hurriedly. They constitute, I must admit, a very miserable period of our history, being for the most part composed of one blunder after another in rapid succession.

I cannot say for sure (it seemed a very long time to me), but I have heard old girls remark that it took our class a very few days to "learn the ropes." For instance, by October every freshman knew beyond a doubt that the "pharm" did not consist of several acres of plowed ground with cows and chickens roaming over them. By this time every freshman had learned, too, that it is customary to report to class when class time came, that respect was due to seniors, absolute deference and obedience to sophomores.

Another great truth each freshman had discovered was that the juniors were her "big sisters" and the very best pals a girl could have. She knew that they stood ready to defend her from all terrors, from the faculty to the sophomores.

Through weeks of toil brightened by an occasional party and by Mrs. Hudging's delightful surprise dinners, we came at last to the longed-for Thanksgiving day, full of games and merriment and ending gloriously in a real banquet. Then the Class of '21 came back to join in the festivities and to see if we seemed worthy to hold up their treasured Ku Klux Klan standards which they have handed down to us. With what pride we bore our new banner in their colors and with their sign from the field of battle victorious!

Some of us remember with unpleasantness a certain English theme which had to be written early in the semester on "Why I came to Wesleyan." How we worked over it and how many of us in that period of desperate homesickness wondered after all just why we had come!

Ask us now why we are coming back and with one voice we will tell you, "Because we love it!"

Freshman Class Poem

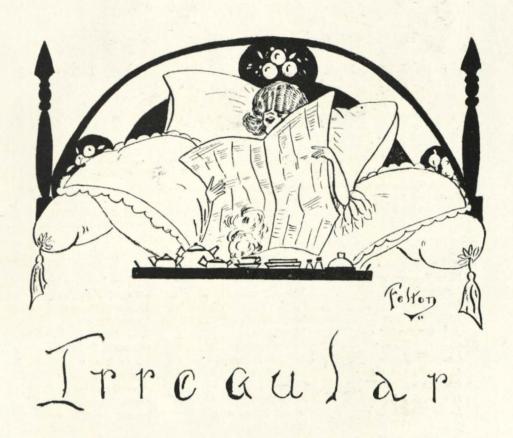

Once more the banner Red and White, Unfurls itself o'er followers new, And shades with well-protecting light Their green into a nobler hue.

Though freshman we may be today,
We are the Klu Klan of tomorrow,
Whose goal must be to pave a way
Which future klans will strive to follow.

Hail to the Class of '25, Ever eager to do the right, For highest honor may you strive, Loyal klan of the Red and White.

If you're looking for a place to send your daughter, Mr. Man,

You'll never find a better if you search through all the land.

It's good advice I'm giving and I hope you'il understand,

Just pack her trunk and send her off to Wesleyan.

Oh here's to Wesleyan College, hip, hooray,

Oh here's to Wesleyan College, hip, hooray,

Oh here's to Wesleyan College,

'Tis the fountain head of knowledge,

Oh here's to Wesleyan College, hip, hooray,

All hall the invincible team of the lavender and white. "They came, they saw, they concuered." Through four years of basketball strife, victory has crowned their every battle. The same unconquerable spirit that dominated the lavender and white of '18 has guided the team of '22. For four years Thanksgiving day has seen the following score marked up to the credit of the lavender and white:

To My Mother

The following sonnet, written by Miss Mary Wilson, a member of the Wesleyan Writers' Club, won one of the prizes in the poetry contest conducted recently by the State Federation of Women's Clubs:

O mother mine, a precious gift of love, Divine expression of God's trust in man, Sent down from His eternal realm above To love as only saintly mothers can.

Thou art as pure as that carnation white
Which symbolizes perfectly thy day,
Or yet the lily reared in shaded light
Which turns our thoughts to Christ on Easter Day

Your face to me is like a lovely song,
Inspiring hope so tender, yet so sweet,
It cheers me when the days are hard and long,
And life's grave conflicts I am called to meet.
O, Inspiration mine from day to day,
Christ's own true semblance here on earth for aye.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1921.

When I got the last cinder out of my eye and pulled my hat up so that my field of vision was once more in operating order, I looked around and gasped! This place is as near to Fairyland as I ever expect to get in this world! The mountains are so lofty and serene and far above the little things of this world they make me forget that one short week ago I was in the sordid rush of exams, with no dreams—but nightmares—and no hopes—but those of not flunking anything.

Our delegation of twenty-nine is the largest one here, and we are making quite a splash! Tonight in the dining room we sang to Blue Ridge, other colleges, and ourselves. I can't speak for the music we made, but I know the racket was considerable.

I think I'm going to love this place!

SATURDAY, JUNE 3, 1921.

This is a busy life I'm leading, but somehow I'm not minding it a bit. Each girl can take only one subject, but by the time she goes to her class and the devotional and departmental meetings she is particularly interested in, the morning is gone.

Your afternoons you spend pretty muchly "As You Like It." There are always several hikes you can join, and the swimming pool is handy. Or, if you're of a lazy temperament like me, you can drift around and get acquainted with your neighbors.

Tonight there was a devotional meeting in the auditorium first. After that our delegation waxed sentimental and went a-serenading by the light of the moon. We called on Hollins, Brenau, Agnes Scott and some others and, in a musical word or two, told them how much we thought of them.

Then, for fear some unappreciative soul might prefer sleep to harmony, we came home for delegation prayer meeting. That's just over and the bugler is blowing taps this very minute.

That will be one of the things I will always remember about Blue Ridge—that good-night bugle call. It has such a peaceful, soothing sound as it dies away over the mountains and things grow quiet and wait for another day.

SUNDAY, JUNE 11, 1921.

My suit-case is all packed, and bright and early tomorrow morning I leave for Georgia and home. Of course I'll be glad to see them all again, but I do hate to leave this place.

I never can forget tonight's vesper service. It was very informal; we all sat down on the broad steps of Robert E. Lee Hall, facing the mountains and the sunset, and sang the sweetest hymns there are, "Lead, Kindly Light," "Day is Dying in the West," and others. While we were sitting there, through a rift in the clouds there shone one golden spot. It looked as if it might have been planned especially for us. I suppose it was the gleam that the Blue Ridge song tells us to follow.

Now that it's over, there comes the question: "Has it been worth while?" I think if I should put it to a vote in our delegation meeting tonight there would be a unanimous decision that it has been the most really worth-while thing we've ever experienced.

He: "Passed your house last night." She (bored): "Thanks."

Juniors colors were black and blue Thanksgiving Day.

Oh-h-h-h, Lemuel, vat you tink? I vas arrested for speetink yesterday.

Vat, you? Why you haf no car, haf you?

No, not that. Speetink on the sidewalk .- Lemon Punch.

They were on the front porch watching a huge searchlight playing over the quiet sky. Backwards and forwards the arc of light swung in an uncertain frequency.

B. F.: "Wonder what they are doing that for."

V. M.: "I don't know, unless they're hunting for stars."

Drunk: "Tell me, officer." Officer: "What?"

Drunk: "Ish troo shat we are going to have prohibition?"—Awgwan.

THE ENIGMA

(Apologies to Shakespeare)

Is this some mail I see before me? A letter in my box? Come, let me clutch thee-

I have thee not and yet I see thee still. Thou numbers, art thou not sensible to touch?

Thou art wrong—a false combination. I cannot ope thee for my fever-heated haste-

I have thee now. See this which now I draw.

Mine eyes are made the fools of my de-

Hear not my words. Take this present horror from my sight,

An advertisement-I go, the bell invites me.

FLAPPER SONG

Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Gamma Mu: Pearl pins, gold pins, Pins enameled blue: Chi Psi, Delta Phi, Delta Sigma Nu; Tea time, toddle time: Taxicabs for two.

* *

Mr. Smith: "Young lady, didn't your conscience tell you that you were doing wrong?"

Ruth Field: "I don't believe everything I hear.'

AS THE GIRLS SING IT "Feather Your Nest"

When we've a date We powder our nose, And when they're late We powder our nose; When we're out dining We feel it shining Like the old silver lining, So we go and powder our nose. When we're out shopping We powder our nose, And when we're hopping We powder our nose;

We keep them waiting! To be fascinating Go powder your nose.

MERCER UNIVERSITY

MACON, GEORGIA

On the Same Street With Wesleyan

To the Fair Ladies who Have Made This Year's Veterropt a Success, Greetings:

The students of Mercer University, who have always been your warmest admirers, congratulate you upon the large enrollment this year. It is a source of no little satisfaction to us that we have more students than Wesleyan College. We desire every one of you to become good helpmates, using your influence and your persuasive powers in bringing next year to Mercer University the largest number of students the institution has ever had. You can do this if you try. See to it that your brothers, your cousins, your sweethearts, and even your acquaintances go nowhere else than to Mercer University. Tell them of the opportunities that await them there in

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
The School of Law
The School of Theology
The School of Commerce
The School of Journalism
The School of Education
The Pre-Engineering Course
The Pre-Medical Course

Last year I gave the Veterropt one-half page of advertising and our enrollment increased 138 over the previous year. This year I am taking a page and I expect with your aid to have 276 more boys next year than this.

Should they desire some information which you are unable to give, tell them to write to
